Making information usable

Making information usable

Intelligent information management is nowadays considered one of the central success factors of any company. We will help you refine mere data into information relevant to decision-making.

Our Services

Data is a resource. Intelligently processed and placed within a context, it currently represents the critical success factor. IT-Logix supports you in the implementation of a networked information system with years of experience, broad expertise, sophisticated concepts and highly trained employees – strengths our reference customers will be happy to confirm.

Business Intelligence

A buzzword turned competitive factor. Business Intelligence provides a foundation for important insights and measurable successes. We make your data transparent and place it within a context. This results in a valuable and highly up-to-date outcome which can be used for the adjustment of business processes and serve your employees as a basis for decision-making.

Consulting

A condition for the successful application of a Business Intelligence solution is that it be tailored to the company. Using your requirements as a starting point, we will develop an integrated solution together and we will support you from the idea stage right through project planning and to the rollout.

Training

A Business Intelligence solution is most worthwhile when the users are familiar with it and apply the instrument properly. With well-founded training sessions we impart skills, user competence and enthusiasm in the application of your Business Intelligence solution.

Service Desk

Our competent experts are at your service, whether you have specific questions or require troubleshooting. Benefit from a service and support contract tailored to your requirements.

Software Solutions

The quality of an information system depends on whether the software has been selected intelligently and networked smartly. Custom-tuned software solutions optimize business processes and provide an important basis for decision-making. IT-Logix smoothly integrates new solutions into the existing systems topology. Our IT professionals command an enormous amount of know-how and guarantee a quick and cost-effective service provision.

Software Development

Custom requirements call for custom solutions. Our experts develop web and client-server applications according to your requirements and wishes. In doing so, we rely upon the modern and proven products of Microsoft and Business Objects.

Maintenance and Support

Regular maintenance and further development increases the value of software solutions. Whether they are ours or pre-existing products: Our experienced employees keep your applications fit.
